

Online guy find:

Attention, civilized men: Artemis Woman has something for you.

It's their new Nail Catcher — kinda like a dreamcatcher, just don't expect an end to those nightmares regarding your losing Fantasy Football team this fall.

Anyway, I received a press release about this product, had to share. It seems that "living together is hard" and that there's "no need to accept caveman habits when a solution is readily at hand." Said habits, I was told, include leaving nail clippings on toilet seats. Yikes.

To the rescue is Nail Catcher, a precision toenail-clipping device that collects fresh clippings inside a plastic chamber and stores them until they are removed. Hands never touch the clippings, which means no messy cleanup. When the Nail Catcher is full, just pop open the plastic cover on the back to empty. And its compact size is great for travel, gym and handbags.

You'll find it ($3.99) at tulsaworld.com/artemis.